

11th March 2020,

Planer Statement on Covid-19 (Coronavirus) and the Reliable Supply of the Company's products

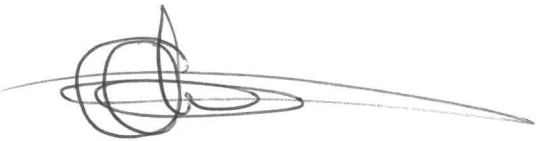

Dear Valued Customer,

The global outbreak of Covid-19 (Coronavirus) is obviously very serious and our sympathies go out to the families around the world whose lives have been affected by this outbreak. We are also aware that many of our customers have concerns about shortages of the products that we manufacture and supply.

Since the initial outbreak, Planer has been closely monitoring the situation for potential impact to the supply of our products around the world.

Our manufacturing facility, based in Sunbury, UK, has not been impacted by coronavirus, and is taking steps to prevent any potential impact. We continually monitor the advice from the World Health Organisation, the UK Government and Public Health England and should the situation in the UK become more serious our contingency plans will be implemented with the aim of minimising the disruption to the supply of our products, whilst protecting the health and wellbeing of our employees, their families and the general public.

We're in close communication with key suppliers to ensure appropriate supplies of components and products. As the global situation evolves, we will continue to take the steps necessary to safeguard the reliable supply of our products.

Adrian Fuller
Managing Director, Planer Limited